Imagine hearing the gospel accounts, for the first time, as the first disciples heard it, but now in “surround sound,” as details from multiple writers provide a fuller, richer telling of this amazing story. While many stories in the synoptic gospels are similar, each man writes from his own perspective and to a different audience. Hearing all four voices in one reading brings a new, more complete understanding of the life and times of Christ. This easy to read 278-page paperback is perfectly suitable for Youth Ministries, teens, college students and adults. It shows Jesus as a great prophet, teacher, master miracle worker and Son of God. Jesus forewarns in the Great Commission, “If You continue in My words [the Gospel], then you really are My disciples. You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free” (John 8:31-32).

All 110 Chapter illustrations and headings, such as “A Withered Right Hand,” keep the reader focused on Christ’s life and message. Whether one has recently come to faith or is preparing to embark on missionary service, this marvelous teaching guide is a valuable resource. Suitable for all ages, it combines the King James gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John into a single narrative. It is also especially suited for Christians leaving a parent church seeking a greater purpose in God's plan. Nearly 120 Old Testament references are embedded throughout the body of the text, and prove without a doubt that Jesus of Nazareth is the Christ, or Messiah in Hebrew. As part of the Great Commission, Jesus also asks all believers, “Why call Me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ and do not the things which I say?” (Luke 6:46)
